

SIXTEEN STRIKE LEADERS ARE ARRESTED IN CHICAGO

Charge is Violation of the Lever Law--Prosecution Will Follow Immediately

Arrested Men Include John Grunau, President of Chicago Yard Men's Association

(By United Press)

Chicago, April 15—The United States government struck today at the radical element backing the out-law railroad strike which resulted in partial paralysis of the nation's industries and threatened industrial centers with starvation.

Deputy United States marshal, acting on instructions of United States Attorney Clynne, arrested sixteen of the strikers' leaders here and expects to take fifteen more into custody this afternoon.

The men arrested include John Grunau, president of the Chicago Yardmen's association, the original out-law union. Grunau called the first strike.

The warrants charged violation of the Lever law and officials said criminal prosecution will be sought.

United States Commissioner Wm. F. Mason, son of Congressman Wm. Mason, of Illinois, issued the warrants.

Many More Arrests to Be Made

Washington, April 15—Chief Burke of the bureau of investigation department of justice, let it be known today that many arrests may be expected in Chicago in connection with the railroad strike.

Burke was told sixteen arrests had been made in Chicago. "There are many more radicals in that district," he said.

Mother, 4 Children Burned to Death

Farmer Severely Injured In Attempt to Save Family From Flames

Delavan, Wis., April 14—Mrs. Hattie Kutz and her four daughters were burned to death on the Raymond Crosby farm near here, late yesterday. Julius Kutz, her husband, who stopped his plowing and rushed to the house, was seriously burned in unsuccessful efforts to save his children.

John Vining, superintendent of a Delavan dairy and an assistant, were driving by the farm at 4 p. m., when they noticed the house half enveloped in flames. They hastened to give aid.

Julius Kutz, exhausted, was stretched on the lawn with severe burns on his hands, face and body.

Near him lay the bodies of three of his daughters, whom he had carried out. They were Edna, 5 years old; Dorothy, 3, and Mildred, 6 years old, was still alive.

"Mama! Mama! She's in there," she cried, pointing to the blazing structure.

Other farmers arrived, and Kutz was taken to the Delavan hospital. Florence died before she could be moved.

Kutz regained consciousness on the way to the hospital, and pleaded for someone to save his wife.

The house was destroyed, and a search for Mrs. Kutz's body was started early today.

Kutz was unable to explain the origin of the fire. He was plowing, he said, when he first saw the flames.

Brussels, April 15—Two hundred persons are reported to have been killed as the result of an explosion in a chemical factory at Stolberg, near Aix la Chapelle, Rhenish Prussia.

Illinois Primaries Eliminates Hoover

In the Opinion of Wood and Johnson Supporters—Only Received 8,500 Votes

By HAROLD JACOBS

(United Press Staff Correspondent.) New York, April 15—Supporters of Hiram Johnson and Major General Wood claim that the Illinois primaries in which Herbert Hoover was not entered, practically eliminated the latter as candidate for the republican presidential nomination.

Senator Johnson and Herbert Hoover had relatively the same status in the Illinois primaries, that neither had made a campaign in the state nor was named on the ballots.

Johnson received more than 50,000 "written in" ballots while Hoover polled only about 8,500.

This they hold indicates that Johnson is gaining strength at the expense of Hoover with whom he will contest in the primaries in California, Oregon and Montana.

The Johnson group here strongly asserted that when Hoover declared his allegiance to the republican party he not only lost all the democratic support he had, but lost the large independent liberal block. This latter eliminated, according to the Johnson organization, has transferred its support to the two leading liberals of the republican and democratic camps. This the Johnsonites say is Johnson and McAdoo.

Wood campaign leaders of course, will not admit the latter claim of the Johnson group, but contend that Hoover's showing in Illinois compared with the California senator, is a serious blow to the Hoover boom. But the Wood managers emphasized however his victory in the district which will send fourteen delegates to the national convention, and this in Lowden's own state.

Lowden's Illinois Plurality is 80,000

(By United Press)

Chicago, April 15—Governor Frank O. Lowden's plurality in the Illinois preferential primaries was more than 80,000, returns today indicated. All but 227 precincts have reported.

Governor Lowden's total in 5,635 of the 5,962 precincts was 234,878; Woods total was 159,624 and Senator Hiram Johnson 46,181.

Would Impeach Asst. Sec. of Labor

Kansas Congressman Introduces Resolution of Impeachment of Asst. Sec'y. of Labor L. P. Post

(By United Press)

Washington, April 15—A resolution providing for impeachment of Louis F. Post, assistant secretary of labor, on charges of preventing deportation of aliens who sought overthrow of the government by force and violence, has been prepared for introduction in the house by Rep. Hoch of Kansas, a republican, he said today.

Hoch obtained recognition from Speaker Gillette shortly after the house met today to introduce the resolution, but at the request of republican Leader Mondell, postponed such action until the phraseology of the measure could be reviewed by the republican leaders.

Hoch stated he intends to press action on his resolution.

Pershing Throws Hat Into the Presidential Ring

Says He Will Accept Nomination for President if that Service is Demanded of Him

L. C. MARTIN

(United Press Staff Correspondent.) Washington, April 15—General Pershing's entry into the presidential race was an absorbing topic with politicians of all parties here today.

Pershing's virtual announcement at the dinner of the Nebraska society here last night declaring he would accept the nomination for president if that service was demanded of him, created considerable discussion.

After one of the speakers had mentioned Pershing in connection with the presidency, the general in reply said:

"I feel that no patriotic American could decline to serve in that high position if called upon to do so by the people."

Meeting will be Held Despite Mayor

(By United Press)

Aberdeen, S. D., April 15—Lester P. Barlow, national chairman of the World War Veterans, announced today that efforts would be made to hold the World War Veteran and Nonpartisan League meeting scheduled for tonight, at Stratford, S. D., despite statements of the mayor of Stratford that he would not permit the meeting.

A hall has been engaged for the meeting and men sent from this city to post announcements. The cards were torn down and the mayor informed the men the meeting could not be held. Barlow has wired the Stratford mayor that he will test the law and will attempt to speak and will submit to a "peaceful and legal arrest." A special two-coach train has been chartered to take the Aberdeen World War Veterans and Nonpartisan League members to the meeting tonight.

Pickford Action Forecast Today

Los Angeles, April 15—Charging that fraud and perjury had been committed in obtaining a divorce by Mary Pickford from her husband, Owen Moore, that there was conspiracy and collusion in the bringing of Moore into the state to be served with papers, and that Miss Pickford had not established a legal residence, Attorney General Leonard B. Fowler will tomorrow file at Minden, Nev., a suit by the state demanding to annul the decree, it was indicated.

Irish Protest Action of British Government

(By United Press)

Washington, April 15—Secretary of State Colby today received a delegation of New England Irish to complain to him that Great Britain has refused to permit Irish police prisoners in Ireland to be tried by a court in Ireland, according to Rep. Pague of Missouri, who accompanied the delegation. Colby asked for more information and promised to give consideration to the requests that he protest against the British action.

Germany Accused of Giving Aid to Sinn Fein Revolt

Letter, Reputed Appeal to Tenthon Spy For Army, Printed in London

London, April 15—The London Morning Post, which is bitterly anti-Irish, yesterday printed letters purporting to show the Germans are assisting the Sinn Fein rebellion.

The letters, written by Thomas Loughlin of Dublin, who is said to be a Sinn Fein leader, refer to a recent trip he made to Germany. One is addressed to Baron von Horst, a German spy reported from Great Britain during the war, and asks for supplies of "government electric cable for the Dublin corporation."

It also refers to ships.

The Post alleges this is code indicating arms and ammunitions, but it does not disclose the code or how the letters came into its possession. It states the letters were not sent direct, but to an intermediary, and Loughlin asks Horst to reply in a private envelope with no indication of its source.

New Revolution Organized in Germany

Paris, April 15—Dispatches to the French foreign office today indicated that a new revolutionary movement was organized in Germany, and outbreaks against the Ebert government was expected momentarily, the dispatch said.

Police and Civilians Clash in Ireland

Dublin, Ireland, April 15—Three civilians were killed and nine wounded in clashes today between police and citizens at Milton and Malkey, County Clare, at Reids. Police fired into many houses. More than 150 persons were arrested in raids in Dublin.

Government Expects Strike to Collapse

When Men Realize the Outlaw Strike Was Plot of I. W. W. and Communists

(By United Press)

Railroad passenger service crippled by striking switchmen and yardmen, was gradually being brought back to normal throughout the country today. Movement of freight was being resumed in the west but was still tied up in the east.

Officials of the railroad brotherhood who have fought the unauthorized walkout, declared the strike was broken definitely.

Meantime government officials were arresting leaders of the strike in Chicago.

While men were reported going to work in large numbers in some cities, there were no important defections from the ranks of the strikers in eastern districts.

Government officials who have been in touch with the situation, believe the men who had walked out would return to their positions as a result of the exposure of I. W. W. leadership of the strike by Attorney General Palmer and arrest of some of the leaders. They believe the evidence Palmer made public last night, would convince the strikers they had been misled.

Strikers in Chicago, headquarters of the leaders of the unauthorized walkout, expressed indignation at Palmer's charges. Wm. Haywood, secretary of the I. W. W. organization, denied the charges, although he said the I. W. W. approved the walkout.

Washington, April 15—The government today waited to learn whether Attorney General Palmer's charges that the nation-wide railroad strike was organized by the I. W. W., will induce the workers to repudiate their leadership and return to their jobs. That the strikers will flock back today is the hope of President Wilson and members of his cabinet before whom Palmer yesterday laid his evidence.

Palmer charged W. Z. Foster, who organized the steel strike, turned his attention to the railroad situation immediately after that strike ended. He charged Foster was working for the I. W. W. and the communist internationalists which seek the overthrow of the United States government through force and violence. He made public letters and documents to support this charge.

Palmer and his associates believe the men who walked out upon learning the justice department's exposition of the leaders as revolutionists, will see that they have been betrayed and speedy collapse of the strike will follow.

Strike Broken Say Brotherhood President

Cleveland, Ohio, April 15—"The strike can be said to be definitely broken," was the statement issued here today by a high railroad brotherhood official.

More than a hundred telegrams on the strike situation in all parts of the country received during the last twenty-four hours by W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, indicate that "the strike is not only crumbling but rapidly dwindling," he said.

Strikers Win Victory

(By United Press)

Dublin, Ireland, April 15—The general strike had won its third great victory within a month today. Sixty-six striking Sinn Fein prisoners in Mount Joy prison were released unconditionally by the British government as commerce throughout Ireland had been tied up for two days as a result of the protest walkout called by labor unions.

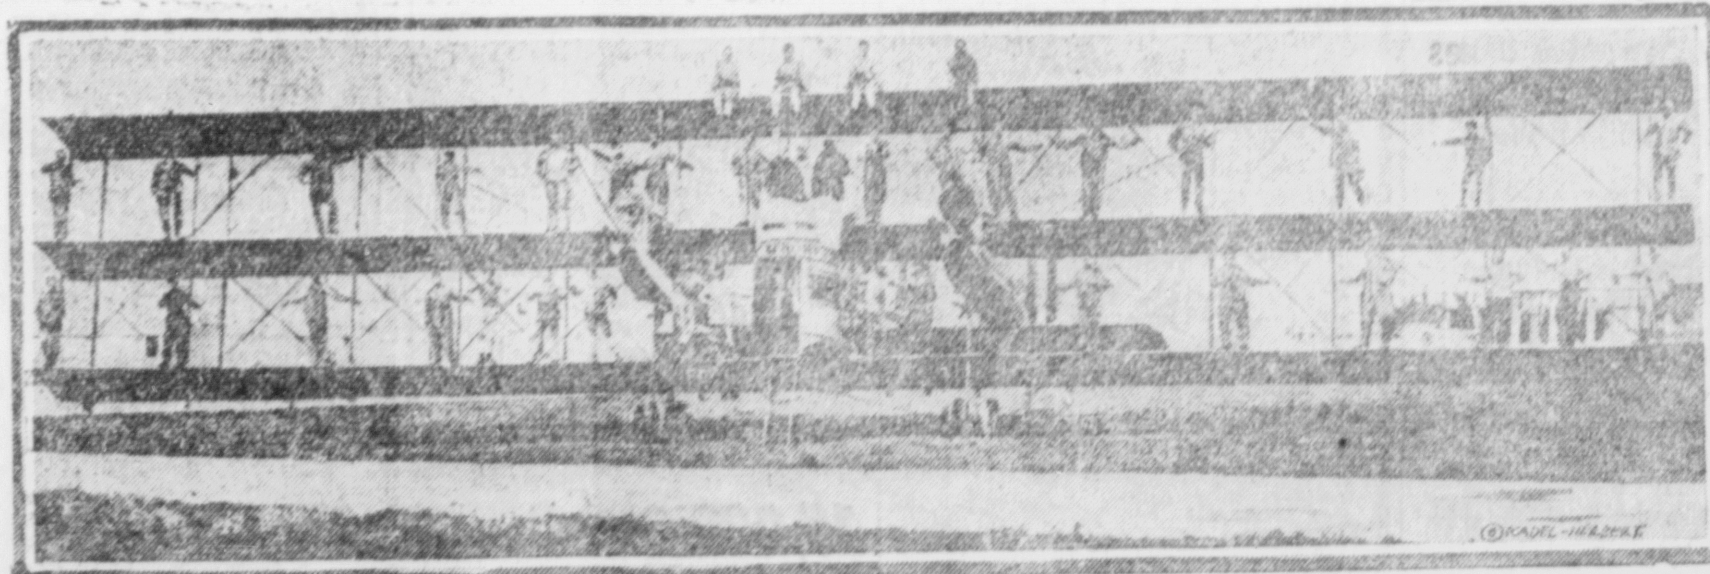

Revolt Plotters Arrested in Germany

(United Press)

Paris, April 15—A News Agency dispatch from Berlin today said that Major General von Luetwitz and Major Bischoff, accused of attempting to foment a new revolution in Germany, have been arrested.

The men were found hiding on an estate in eastern Prussia, the dispatch said.

Fire at noon practically destroyed the two story warehouse, the old Golden Grain Belt building, which was used for storage by Jacob Mueller and Fred Sargent. Firemen assisted to save the near beer. A third building, a story high, located near by had the roof damaged and a considerable amount of oatmeal and breakfast food stored there was badly damaged. The origin of the fire is unknown and by some is ascribed to spontaneous combustion. J. C. Clausen made a fast run for the shop water gate and shut that off, thus giving added pressure in the down town district.

The worst conditions reported were in the vicinity of Grand Rapids and Wilmar, where the roads are frozen and rough and almost impassable. At Beardley and Worthington they were good before the snow and rain of Friday and Saturday, but are now poor, with promise of quick improvement. At Wheaton only the main highways are passable; at Morris and Winton the condition is poor just now. In the

Women's Benefit Association

The next regular meeting of the Women's Benefit association of the Macabees will be held on Friday evening, April 16th, at Odd Fellows hall. The meeting will commence promptly at 7:45 o'clock. Every member should be present at this meeting as business of great importance is to be brought before the review. At the close of the meeting the basket social and fish pond will be held for the benefit of the floral fund. The ladies extend to the Sir Knights a most cordial invitation to meet with them at nine o'clock and spend a pleasant social evening. Hot coffee and good rich cream will be served by the committee.

The ladies have been fortunate in securing the services of a real live salesman to auctioneer off the baskets and they are in hopes that every Sir Knight will aim to meet with them and not only help along a good cause but also get acquainted with the association.

"NO MAN'S PORT"

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

"You're slipping, Bross," observed Mr. Ralph Warren, employer of Marvin Bross. "Down late mornings, sleepy till noon, out of the office half an hour before quitting time. It won't do. Watch your step!"

Bross was attentive, but unheeding. A month later, when someone asked Mr. Warren about the young man, the response came:

"Drifting. He was a pleasant, accommodating young fellow, but he idled his time away. Not vicious, nor dissipated. Just caught with the glare of the town and it dazzled him. Started wrong somehow in choosing his business career, and indolence and carelessness have done the rest."

"Slipping, drifting and then down and out!" These were the three formidable phases that contended with well meaning, but happy-go-lucky Marvin Bross and won the contest. He had come from a quiet country town where he would have been a success with his easy-going, smiling ways and familiarity with local business methods, and the city, instead of being an impetus to ambition, became a pleasant hunting ground for variety and enjoyment.

The last phase of Marvin's reckless experience became very manifest to him, as one chilly winter evening, homeless, out of money and work, he crept into the hallway of a public building and crouched behind a radiator.

"Looks seedy, but he's sober," observed one of two night watchmen a little later. "Here!" with a shake of Marvin's arm, "where did you come from?"

"It's not where I came from, gentlemen," remarked Marvin pleasantly, "but where I'm going to if you turn me out of this warm nest. I've had bad luck. What do you do in cases like mine?"

"He looks of the right sort, only down at heel," observed the other officer. "I would say No Man's Port. He looks the kind Old Salty favors."

"All right, take him there," came the response. "See here, my man, you're grazing vagrancy and the municipal court, so go with my partner and see what Old Salty can do with you."

"And who is Old Salty, if I may ask?" propounded Marvin.

"Every man's friend who deserves a chance. He'll be your free landlord for a night, anyhow."

Marvin followed the officer. He was curious, interested as they reached a store.

"Here's another derelict to add to your fleet, Salty."

The queerest appearing man Marvin had ever met nodded and regarded this new recruit with one probing eye. He looked the retired old mariner complete. He had also only one arm and was battered up otherwise like some son of battle.

"You seem to need a meal and a bed," he observed to Marvin. "Dream over having found a free harbor and have a talk with me in the morning," and he led Marvin into another room where a frugal but wholesome table was spread, and then to one of the dozen partitioned-off compartments supplied with clean, comfortable cots. In the morning he questioned Marvin in a fatherly way and said:

"You talk right, now to get feeling right. The matter with you is that you have lost your bearings. Suppose I find them for you—will you try to do me credit?"

"If you mean a job," replied Marvin eagerly, "just try me. I've had my lesson."

Before the day was over Old Salty who was one of those philanthropists who do a good deal for humanity without saying much, had secured Marvin a position as attendant to a young man, a confirmed invalid, going South for his health. For five months Marvin applied himself diligently to his duties. He was well paid and when the invalid died his parents made Marvin a grateful present of a thousand dollars. He was a new and welcome Marvin when he reported to Old Salty.

"You've stood the test," remarked the old mariner. "Now, then, to get back to the old basis. My lad, you made a mistake when you left peace and plenty for the city. You took the wrong road. A man can never mend a mistake without going back direct to the original environment and starting in all fresh again. Jog your memory. When and how did you come to start down that wrong road?"

Memory did not fail Marvin, and he winced and looked sad. How clearly did he recall that last talk with pretty Lucy Dayneal back at his home town, he insisted upon venturing a business career in the city, she refusing to even think of wedding a man who would take a wife into a dreaded unknown, away from home and friends. Then he had gone his willful way—down the wrong road.

"Go back and take the right one," directed Old Salty. "Write this sensible young lady, who probably is mourning over you every day, that you are coming back to confess you've made a mistake and begin anew."

A month later dear Old Salty smiled benevolently as he read a note from Marvin Bross.

"I took the road to yesterday, as you advised me," it said—"and oh! what a pleasant one leading to the tomorrows of happiness and peace!"

Quick Time Measurement

In the mountains of Montenegro, distance is often measured by the time it takes to smoke a cigarette. They are moderate and precise—a normal cigarette smokes about one every half hour or so. Consequently a cigarette's ash would be from one and a half to two miles.

A DAMNING INDICTMENT

While the landlord pounds on the door demanding of the American people increased rents or removal into the streets and while scarcity of material has made building for the citizens of modest means prohibitive, there lie stored in government yards and warehouses as surplus war material 800,000 kegs of nails bought at an average of $3 a keg, salable today at $50 a keg, and sixty million feet of lumber.

While the country is suffering from underproduction of manufactured articles the government holds in idleness between $200,000,000 and $500,000,000 worth of machine tools of standard make that hundreds of industries would like to obtain and put to work, and 100,000 desks and typewriters with adding machines and other office equipment. In all, the government is holding off the market more than $1,000,000,000 worth of materials which it cannot use, unless there should be immediately another great war—materials which will deteriorate and become obsolete if not sold, which would never bring higher prices than at present and which the nation sorely needs!

These statements are given on the authority of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, a responsible publication. It seems safe to accept them as fact. Meanwhile the government is howling for more money and the nation for more production. Was ever the indictment of a helpless bureaucratic administration more damning?—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Business With the Stork.

For four happy years Bobby had held with great efficiency the very interesting—not to say lucrative—position of only child and suggestions of possible encroachment on his territory had always met with his emphatic disapproval.

One day the family was much rejoiced by the arrival of a baby sister for Bobby, but the announcement of the little new arrival seemed to hold but small interest for him. Decidedly he was no longer the one and only child and the new baby seemed to have usurped his place as the center of family interest. Who wouldn't be just a little resentful? So, when he was invited to make the acquaintance of the little sister, he accepted with considerable hesitation and querulously demanded: "Who brought that baby here?"

"Why, the stork brought her," his grandmother replied.

"Where is that stork?" asked Bobby.

"I want to see it."

Beer in China.

Reports of the invasion of China by American brewers are being received by the Anti-Saloon league. According to The Far Eastern Republic missionaries write that Americans are planning to introduce the saloon with a free lunch service for the price of a "schmoozer of snuff."

Missionary schools, they complain, are being disturbed by parades arranged by the brewers to advertise their arrival. One missionary writes: "I had to disband my girls' school the other day because of one of the parades. Machinery which had just arrived for a brewery was being hauled through the streets with an escort of honor. One of those terrible American jazz bands had been brought over to lead the procession."

Largest Apple Orchard.

The largest apple orchard in the world is at Dufur, Oregon. It contains 3,800 acres, with 200,000 trees and in 1919 bore 6,000,000 pounds of choice apples.

A CAMERA ROMANCE

By ALDEN CHAPMAN

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

"There's something going on at the old barn, sir," spoke the gardener of Graylands to his young master.

Roscoe Blair strolled leisurely in the direction indicated. His clear, boyish eyes showed a token of curiosity as he neared the dismantled barn at the edge of the estate. A man had a motion picture camera in an automobile. Near by a second man was putting on the striped suit of a convict. At a signal the latter, assuming the terror of a typical fugitive, ran toward the barn and disappeared within, the other meantime turning the crank that operated the camera. As the assumed convict disappeared he turned toward Blair.

"I suppose we are intruding," he said, "but we needed just such an exterior for a part of a movie. It is usual to pay for the privilege."

"Oh, that is all right," interrupted Blair graciously. "Take all the pictures you like."

"Thank you," acknowledged the camera operator, as his assistant reappeared and cast off his assumed attire. "Let's see—what's next?" scanning a written sheet. "Oh, yes! Old-fashioned home, kindly-faced mother, beautiful daughter! Wonder if we can fit that conveniently?"

"I think you can, almost directly at hand," said Blair. "I noticed yesterday some new tenants in the first house down the road."

The operator drove on and located the cottage described without difficulty. Its door was open. He looked into an exquisitely neat and orderly little parlor. A white-haired old lady sat in a rocking chair reading aloud to a lovely girl engaged on some embroidery. There was an ancient piano set against the wall and an antique spinning wheel, evidently a treasured memento. The artistic impulse in the man of many scenes was deeply aroused.

In a few fit words he explained his mission.

"You are supposed to be the mother and sister of a wayward son and brother," explained the operator. "My partner outside acts him. There must be one other character, however, a young man. Is there anybody in reach I could get to act the part?"

"We are older strangers here," said Mrs. Layton.

"Then I'll try and pick up some one in the town. I'll be back soon," and the operator was back in his automobile, but slowed up as passing the Blair place its young proprietor hailed him.

"Well, did you find the people to suit you?" asked the latter.

"To the letter," replied the operator in animation. "A model interior and lovely old lady, indeed. The girl dazzles. She is certainly a charming creature," and then the speaker referred to the object of his present quest.

"See here," spoke Blair smilingly. "I'll accommodate you if I will do." "You will certainly fill the bill of the manly and handsome young hero," complimented the operator.

"This neighbor of yours has kindly consented to fill in," said the operator to Mrs. Layton later, and her daughter, Grace, fluttered and flushed as he added: "He is to represent the lover. You are to be seated as you are, mind you, to the young lady, 'are to stand at the window—thus—' young man by your side. He is holding your hand and speaking to you earnestly. My man dashes in. He swoons at your lover and orders him out of the house."

Grace Layton blushed again at this second allusion. She shrank back timidly. With the utmost courtesy, however, Blair stepped to her side and so deliberately carried out his part of the program that, although she trembled as his hand clasped hers, Grace went through the ordeal acceptably.

"A fine picture," said the operator, as he paid the money promised and departed. Roscoe Blair lingered a few minutes "to get acquainted with his new neighbors." The next morning his gardener brought over a brilliant bouquet with his compliments.

Three months later the camera operator reappeared. He drove directly up to the Layton cottage and knocked at the door, but there was no response. Just then Roscoe Blair came around the house.

"Why, hello!" he hailed, extending a welcoming hand. "Blessed man! I am glad to see you again. You came into my life in a grand way. I can tell you." The operator was fairly overcome by the warmth of this effusive greeting. "I come on business to see Miss Layton," he explained.

"She and her mother have gone to town," explained Blair. "Back soon. What's the urgency, friend?"

"Oh, such luck for Miss Layton! Our director has been wild to get hold of her ever since he saw her picture. He considers her a marvel of beauty, just as I do, and you, too, I guess. He wants to book her and her mother, domestic scenes only, at one hundred dollars a week."

Roscoe Blair shook his head definitely. "Too late, my friend," he announced. "Miss Layton is otherwise preoccupied for."

"What do you mean?" asked the operator anxiously.

"That she is to become the mistress of a gentleman next week," was Roscoe Blair's smiling reply.

INDIA HOME OF TREE FERN

In That Country the Plant Attains the Dignity of a Splendid, Full-Grown Tree.

When we visit a botanical garden and behold specimens of palms and ferns so luxuriant that their crowns nearly touch the glass-domed conservatory, we rarely pause to realize that in their native haunts these tropical plants are trees. At Darjeeling, India, for instance, is the tree fern found in its greatest glory. The first few miles of the 2-foot gauge railway journey from Calcutta passes through a dense jungle, with a vegetation of tropical luxuriance. Grass is 15 feet deep, cane stalks rise 50 and 60 feet high, while from the feathery foliage of the tree fern peacocks and birds of paradise lift their haughty heads in their topmost fronds. As one rambles along in the little first-class carriage which weighs under two tons, he realizes that the tree fern and all the other luxuriant foliage in this impenetrable jungle, shields the home of the tiger, rhinoceros, panther and wild dog.

There are no tree ferns in the United States, but 30 specimens or more are found in the higher altitudes of the West Indies, and many more occur in other tropical regions. In some portions of the mountains of Jamaica, tree ferns form half or more of the forest vegetation, their trunks varying from 6 to 50 feet in height.

BEAUTIFUL IN ITS COLORING

Green Warbler Remarkable Even Among American Birds for the Gorgousness of Its Plumage.

Some birds get very nervous and become much excited if you approach their nests, and among them is the black-throated green warbler, says the American Forestry association. Another thing about this bird is that it frequently builds several nests. Whether this is because it changed its mind after building the first one and decided to select a better location or with the deliberate purpose of deceiving any intruders who might come along is not known. The bird is very beautifully colored, the top of its head and the region nearly down to the shoulders being a yellow green, the back olive green, the throat and breast jet black and the under parts white with some yellow in them at times.

If you are out bird hunting and are looking for that member of the warbler known as the pine warbler, you will be most likely to find it, as the name implies, in a pine grove. In fact it is seldom found outside of such localities. The bird is rather quiet in its manners and does not move about from one spot to another with as much fuss as do many birds. Like the creeper it has the habit of creeping about among the branches of the trees. It is greenish yellow above and brighter below, with two white wing bars and with white spots on its outer tail feathers.

AMUSEMENTS

At the Park Today and Tomorrow

"I can earnestly say that never in the history of the New Park theatre, has a picture as replete with dramatic intensity as 'The Beauty Market,' been shown."

Thus Manager Workman, of the New Park theatre, describes "The Beauty Market," starring Katherine

Katherine MacDonald
"The Beauty Market"

MacDonald, the world's most beautiful woman and which he will show at his theatre commencing today.

"As Amelie Thorndike, a society girl unable to afford the life she is leading, Miss MacDonald portrays one of the most unique characterizations in the history of the screen. She strongly drives home the wholesome lesson that the 'four flusher' and the society fakir must ultimately pay for what has been conceded to them. I can promise that 'The Beauty Market' will be as fine as 'The Thunderbolt,' which met with a wonderful reception when shown here."

At the Best Tomorrow

A fascinating story that will appeal especially to the feminine element of the audience, a talented and beautiful star, and a most elaborate production, beautifully photographed, are what the patrons of the Best theatre will see when Elaine Hammerstein appears in her next production "The Woman Game," tomorrow.

The story is based upon the idea that it is no more than fair that a woman should be entitled to pursue the same tactics in her business in life—which is the matrimonial game—as the man does in his.

The authors, Leighton Osmun and Frank Dazel, have brought out every possible angle to the situation.

Plants Demand Cold.

After the period of growth in spring and summer there is a period of dormancy before the cold weather sets in, and if plants are maintained artificially at a high temperature this dormant period persists. Exposure to cold is needed to activate the plant for another period of growth. Perhaps the liberation of enzymes acts on the stored starches, converting them into sugars, or the phenomenon may be due to a change in the permeability of the cell-membrane. Though normally the stimulus required for a renewal of growth is supplied by cold, mechanical injury or a period of drying may have the same effect. The process occurs independently in any exposed part of a plant, so that if one or two branches of a plant be kept continually warm while the other is subjected to the usual winter chilling, the former will not develop on the return of summer temperature, though the latter develops as usual.

Fishing Superstitions.

The salmon fisheries of California used to be responsible for a queer custom on the part of the Indians. Every spring they would "dance for salmon." If the fish did not appear with the celerity deemed appropriate, there would be employed a "wise man" who made an image of a swimming fish which was placed in the water in the hope of attracting live fish to the bait. The Japanese fishermen have the quaint notion that silence must be observed, and even the women left at home are not permitted to talk lest the fish should hear and disapprove. Among the members of the primitive race of Ainus, the first fish caught is brought in through a window instead of a door, so that the other fish "may not see."

Cruel Chinese Custom.

There is a cruel custom which prevails in some districts in South China in time of drought. A large collection of brass locks is made, and each is marked with a Chinese character. One iron lock is added to the pile, and duplicate slips are distributed among the male population of the villages. The unfortunate man whose slip holds the same writing on it as the iron lock must have a slit made in the front of his throat and through this the bar of the iron lock is passed. He is considered to be in some way the cause of the drought and must wear this lock until it rains. Blood poisoning often carries the victim off before the drought is broken.

The Gasoline Problem

THE grave problem confronting the serious-minded men in the petroleum industry today, is to keep pace in production with the seven-league strides of the demand for gasoline.

In ten years the production of crude oil in the United States has increased only 96 per cent, while during the same period the output of gasoline has increased 560 per cent.

The demand for no other commodity in general use has increased to a degree that even approximates the mark reached by gasoline.

In ten years the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has increased its output of gasoline from 150 million gallons to more than 600 million gallons a years.

It is apparent that this could not have been accomplished except by intensive application of improved, scientific methods of refining.

As a matter of fact, the price of gasoline is held in bounds only by the sheer force of science.

Except for the ability of such institutions as the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to make a wide range of useful products from that part of the crude oil which is not used to make gasoline, you would be paying a much higher price for gasoline than you pay today.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is bending every effort to increase its output of gasoline to meet the demands and to sell it to you at as low a price as possible.

COUNTY AGENT WORK VALUABLE

Growing of Potatoes and Dairying
Are Two Standard Farm Industries of County

REPORT OF THE THINGS DONE

Every Farmer Should Join the Farm Bureau and Aid in Developing Crow Wing County

The following facts are taken from the county agent report together with a few things accomplished since that report was published. In making a survey of the agricultural conditions and needs of the county it was found that the growing of potatoes and dairying are the two standard farm industries for the county and the county agent bent his efforts in developing, increasing and standardizing these two farm industries. In furtherance of this work during the past nine months, 24 purebred sires and cows were introduced in the county through county agent work. Fifty sires were placed in the county, many of them directly through the county agent, others deciding to get them after listening to figures and facts on the value of ensilage for cow feed. 250 bushels of certified Rosen rye seed brought in from Michigan, this rye has proven to double in yield over common rye. Twenty-five farmers helped to select seed plots for improving the growing of potatoes. 160 carloads of potatoes sold from farmers to buyers hands through the county agent's office. A potato shipping association incorporated at $10,000 organized at Pequot, raising the selling price of potatoes in that market last fall from fifteen to thirty cents per hundred higher than competitors. Brought in from drought stricken Montana, 8,000 sheep. 1,200 of these sheep remained in the county, purchased by Crow Wing county farmers. 40 head of cattle were examined and approved for registration. Ten demonstrations were given in milk testing and free assistance given in testing 260 head of cows for tuberculosis. 18 farms were tested for acidity, three of which were strongly acid and lime was secured for test plots on two of these.

Due to the scarcity of labor, help was secured for 25 farmers through the season.

Six farmers clubs were organized during the past season and six others assisted and revived developing them into strong community centers meeting once a month and working for the community interest.

One hundred and fifteen agricultural articles were written by the county agent on various topics on local agricultural conditions. The Farm Bureau Bulletin issued once a month in which farmers are privileged to put in their exchange lists and advertise farm products either wanted or for sale. Exhibits were entered at various potato shows and prizes taken by eight different farmers, placing our county on the map as a potato center. Affiliation of three cooperative potato associations in the county with the State Potato Exchange has been accomplished, and arrangements made for three others to affiliate.

The Farm Bureau is the strongest organization of farmers that has ever been established in the world, has been placed on a sound basis in the county, membership increased from 113 to 260, and federation with state and national bodies secured.

Boys and girls club work established in the county with the assistance of the rural school teachers and a boys' and girls' club leader hired. Already over four hundred boys and girls have been enrolled in this work and it is expected that a thousand boys and girls in the county will work on club projects this year. 150 bushels of potatoes have been secured by the county agent of standard varieties for this purpose. Efforts have been made to secure the State Potato Exchange to locate its headquarters at Brainerd. Favorable indications are that they will be located here. This will advertise our county as the center of the Minnesota potato belt, which will be of inestimable value to the county, land values and potato marketing.

Recently a carload of dynamite was purchased cooperatively for farmers by the county agent, at a net saving to them of $2,500 above local prices.

Through the office hundreds of farmers have been given advice, thousands of bulletins distributed, seed, tractors, feed, flour, barn plans, house plans, and agricultural information and advice given of all kinds to farmers who have made use of this agency as the business head and center of the agricultural activities of the county. It is for the farmers to make use of this agency. The county as a whole, is well repaid. Placed on a money basis, the county agent work in 1919 cost $3,500. Were the county and state repaid for this? Look over the above list. The carload of dynamite, beside saving $2,250 for the farmers, will clear enough land into improved taxable property to more than pay for the money spent on county agent work. 1,200 head of sheep at $15 per head, makes $18,000 worth of taxable property the first year which will multiply several times in succeeding years. 24 purebred sires at $300 per head means $7,200 worth of taxable property, but the value of improved dairy stock in the county cannot be figured but is many times the value of the sire.

The introduction of 250 bushels of Rosen rye seed means $750 worth of rye. If this means an increase of ten bushels per acre, would mean 7,500 bushels the first year, but the seed from this rye remaining in the county will produce many times the value of the rye introduced.

Interesting boys and girls in club work placed on monetary basis can hardly be figured but the value to the county in having them learn improved methods and have an interest in this sort of work, cannot be estimated. The building of a potato shipping association as has been done in Pequot and is now started in Brainerd, can only roughly be guessed at. The assistance given twelve farmers' clubs in the county by advice or where help is asked, cannot be estimated. The value of agricultural articles and agricultural advice cannot be estimated. The value of the 15 specialists who gave talks in the county the past nine months, cannot be estimated, yet an attendance of over 7,000 farmers surely would prove of some benefit.

In regard to sheep, the Farm Bureau aided in the introduction of the flocks, gave advice regarding care of sheep and will also further the cooperative marketing of the wool, a meeting having been called in Brainerd for April 30 to so associate the farmers.

Then is county agent work worth while? If it means anything to you, if you believe in it, become a member of the Farm Bureau which is an organization promoting county agent work. It hires the agent, is the agricultural boosters' club of the county, working for the better farming of the county. It helps raise the funds to hire the county agent and is an organization of farmers and those interested in the agricultural progress of the county.

The county agent work, rather than increasing taxes, decreases them because it is the means by which more taxable property is brought into the county.

EARNING A BRIDE

By ALVAH J. GARTH

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

There was no reason why Richard Clyde should not be a happy man. He had a beautiful home, a loving wife, a daughter good and beautiful. His business cares were nominal in a handsomely furnished office, where he answered a few letters and had a steady income from a prosperous investment business.

The worn in the bud was fancied illness. Clyde had leisure to nurture all kinds of dismal forebodings. Thus, for a year a slight stage of rheumatism had magnified into locomotor ataxia, and for double that period of time losing weight was laid to anemia. When his physician had dispersed the final symptoms of both distresses, Clyde looked around for some new ailment—and found it—a ven!

"It is simply a growth in no wise connected with the nerves or arteries, harmless as a wart or corn," his physician told Clyde. "The slightest operation in the world will remove it entirely, for it has no roots."

"No cutting or slashing, or blood poisoning for me!" objected Clyde, with vigor. "I shall let it develop till we see what comes of it."

"Nothing will come from it except vagaries," tersely responded the physician, but the ven became a petted idiosyncrasy of the impressive Clyde. He nursed it, he measured it daily. He thought of it the first thing in the morning, and the last thing at night. He guarded it from contact as though a wrench might tear it loose and drench him with his life blood. He studied up tumors, cancers and goitres.

One afternoon a stranger entered the Clyde office. Its proprietor had been reading an article in a medical journal of a case that bore a very distant analogy to his own, where abrasion, metallic poisoning and inflammation had raised a lump the size of an egg on the foot of a man in England. The instance persisted in monopolizing Clyde's thought, and he was nervous, irritable, and seiwled at the caller.

"Mr. Clyde," spoke the latter, a well-groomed, refined appearing young man with a slight air of timidity. "I have come to see you about a subject of great importance to myself. I suppose you don't remember me."

"I don't," responded Clyde, gruffly, barely glancing at the card tendered and scanning the name it bore. Then a faint recollection of having seen a person resembling his visitors among guests of his daughter at a house party came to him. Before he could speak, however, there was a sudden and startling interruption.

Overhead there was a terrific detonation, then a sound of crashing glass. From windows overhead there rained down outside a shower of brittle particles. Bits of plaster from the ceiling fell all about the desk. Frantic cries and rushing footsteps on the floor above told of an unusual commotion.

"An explosion! There's a chemical concern overhead!" gasped Clyde. He struggled to his feet. His visitor grasped his arm and as he noticed the hallway without rapidly filling with vapor, rushed thither, urging, dragging, half carrying the shaken Clyde with him.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside, no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or cassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

him. The latter gave utterance to a terrible yell.

"My arm! Let go! The ven!" but he was forced to the nearest elevator, crowded with excited people, and pushed in.

Agitated, bareheaded, Clyde stood on the ground floor, confused and frightened as a second detonation fairly shook the building. Then in a minute or two a building employee came down. He quieted the fears of the muddled group by announcing that two explosions had occurred, a fire started, but quickly extinguished, and no further danger. Timorously Clyde went back to his office.

He shuddered as he noted the effect of the second explosion. A great hole had been torn in the ceiling, driving down the heavy plaster and a shattered beam. Had he retained his seat at the desk he would have been maimed or killed.

"Where's the fellow who dragged me out, just in time?" he panted. "I owe him everything. His card? Ah, here it is—Ronald Weston."

"Oh, papa! are you safe?" cried an anxious voice, and Wanda Clyde stood in the doorway.

"Incredible!" ejaculated Clyde, as something rolled down his inside sleeve into his hand. "The ven!"

There it was, the object of so much interest and worry, clean swept from its place by the vigorous handling he had received from his rescuer. Clyde tore off his coat, rolled up his sleeve. Clean as a whistle, he had been bereft of the crowning burden of his fancied ailments!

"Ronald Weston," he again read from the card. "He must be found at once! Wanda, a strange young man has saved my life! And he delivered me from the frightful menace of that ven! No telephone number."

"It is 2904 Central, and his address is 227 East Seventh avenue."

"Why, how do you know that?" fairly shouted her father.

"Because—because—oh, papa!" stuttered Wanda. "he came to see you about me. We are engaged, and he wants your permission to marry me."

"He can have it!" declared the jubilant Clyde. "Saved my life! Delivered me from the power of that hateful ven. Yes—you both have by blessing!"

OSTRICH AT HOME

Bad Fellow to Tackle in Fight, Is the Great Bird.

Skulking Hyena Found This Out to Its Sorrow—Few Creatures of the Wild Care to Mix Things With "Plumes."

It was that precise hour when the distant landscape shimmered with heat, when the restless mirage hung on the horizon like visible dreams, and when the only things alive on the plains were the dancing "dust devils"—and they were inanimate—and in the sky the specks floating which would have turned into vultures if anything had died.

All the antelopes and the zebras were motionless portions of the shade under the candelabralike euphorbia trees and all the birds were still.

The silence was the silence of heat—parched, sizzling, frying heat, which only the big lizards defied in the open, or among the rocks that were blistering to the touch.

Then came the voice, resonant, hollow, booming, powerful, extraordinary, like some distant war drum beating, or the bass thunder of a lion, if lion ever challenged at midday. But neither lion nor natives ever wore that conspicuous black and white livery, or stalked along at that tremendous pace as he came alone and afar across the plains, booming as he came. It was Plumes, the cock ostrich, says a writer in London Answers.

Plumes must have been somewhere out of sight afar in a hollow, feeding upon—oh! pebbles, for all I know; there seemed nothing else. But the animal does not live that can escape Plumes' super high-power prismatic binocular eyes, which was why Plumes came back now.

When 500 yards away, the giant bird left off booming; set all sail, so to speak, which in his case meant opening stumpy wings adorned with beautiful plumes sufficient to stock a shop, and—let himself go.

Till that moment he had merely walked as fast as most beasts run, a supercilious Gibson walk. Now he ran, and the dust smoked out behind him like the exhaust behind a motorcar. Anyone who thought he could run faster, or half as fast, for the matter of that, was at full liberty to do so.

The striped hyena did not think he could, but he knew he had to try; and he started up—invisible till then behind a cactus bush—and raced for his skulking life.

Just short of the mimosa scrub, Plumes caught him up. The hyena recoiled upon his own tail, snapping fiercely to fight the last fight. But Plumes, head back, wings spread, wild-eyed, five feet high at the back, towered over him like Azrael, and—he died.

One kick was enough from that terribly armed, twin-clawed foot—just one blasting down-stroke beating as the sledge-hammer strikes.

Then Plumes stalked away, consciously aware, of course, of his much smaller wife, herself quite invisible, lying flat on her eight huge eggs bang in the open, where the hyena had been stalking her. Aware, too, now, of something that had been a hyena before the kick landed, but now was one no longer.

Night came swiftly, as it does in these parts, racing over the mysterious plains, and Plumes, feeding far away on the horizon, put up his flat head and began to stalk westward in the dark. The lions and the thunder were clamoring together among the hills, but this time Plumes did not answer. He had other work to do.

Slowly the hen ostrich got up, stretched and faded away to feed. Slowly Plumes let himself down on the eggs to remain there for the night.

His black plumage made him practically invisible in the dark, and if there were any who should scent the nest, and aim at its destruction, the great male bird was quite capable of tackling them single-legged, save only if they be not lions, wild dog pack, or one very big leopard.

A Boy's Judgment.

Terre Haute Boy Scouts have a very capable drum corps. Recently two new members were recruited from Troop 16, one of the newer troops. After they had had their first rehearsal with the corps they came back to their own troops to tell about it, says the Indianapolis News. They brought their drums with them and on the other boys' insistence gave them a drum duet. It certainly was a noisy one if not melodious and the audience was enthusiastic and admiring.

After it was over and the two little drummers were resting, one of the youngest members of the troop turned to one of the school teachers who was present. "I have a horn," he said, "and I can't play it enough to be in a band. But I do think I could play it in a corps for you don't have to watch the tune there—nothin' but the time."

Qualified.

MARNE MEMORIAL POSTER

JUST as the school children of France gave for their country's gift to the United States—the Statue of Liberty—so will American school children contribute "one cent and upward" for "America's Gift to France," a monumental statue by Frederick MacMonnies, the noted American sculptor. Mr. MacMonnies is contributing his services toward the monument which, it is estimated, will cost $250,000.

The poster shown herewith, is by Albert Sterner, noted American portrait painter. It typifies the tribute which this country will pay to the French through the Marne monument. The poster will be displayed in cities, towns, and villages, and will designate many of the places where contributions may be made during the week of March 22—a free-will offering, in which numbers of contributors, rather than size of contributions, will be sought from school children and others.

Contributions are now being received at National Headquarters, 150 Nassau street, New York, by Charles H. Sabin, president of one of New York's largest trust companies, who is treasurer of the fund. The memorial will be erected at Origin of Chess a Mystery.

The wisest men of the past few hundred years seem to have been utterly at a loss to account for chess. The origin of the game is variously ascribed to the Greeks, the Romans, the Babylonians, the Scythians, the Egyptians, the Jews, the Persians, the Chinese, the Arabians, the Castilians, the Irish and the Welsh. There was an ancient Irish game called "Fithcheall" which is assumed to have been identical with chess, but encyclopedic authority says that "it appears not to have been a sedentary game at all." Perhaps the ancient Celtic kings played it on their mantelpieces, standing up, or possibly it was originally an outdoor sport and very strenuous. The changes that may occur in a game in the course of fifteen centuries or so are surprising. Even a modern game may change so in the course of fifteen months that a former player will feel lost.

Catch Pheasants on Hook.

Pheasants are devoted to raisins, and poachers, knowing this, fasten a hook upon a length of fine line and baiting the hook with a raisin, tie this line to a peg in a hedgerow. Wild ducks are caught in a similar fashion, the bait in this case being worms. Another poacher's trick is the use of fat balls. These are small balls of suet, in the center of each is placed a short length of whalebone or some similar substance, with the pointed ends bent together. When swallowed the fat melts and the sprung whalebone is released, the end sticking in the bird's gullet and choking it. Partridges have regular dusting places like poultry. One poacher laid upon the plan of putting a quantity of pepper into one of these dusting baths, thereby blinding the unfortunate birds that came to use it. He was then able to pick them up quite easily.

ALASKAN BOAT BEATS SUBMARINE

"SUB" HAS ONLY ONE EYE, THIS HAS MANY.

Here is the original camouflaged boat or floating art gallery—an Alaskan family canoe. The designs on the sides of this red cedar craft were painted there purely for decorative and advertising effect and not for concealment or deception as we came to understand the use of camouflage during the world war.

The designs shown are the totemic figures of the chief of this particular tribe of Hydas, who are not Indian or Eskimo, but of distant Japanese origin. The fact that there are four great divisions of natives to be ministered to in Alaska as well as whites of all nationalities complicates the task of the missionaries there. This is recognized in the surveys made for the Inter-church World Movement.

This canoe has eyes—many eyes lavishly scattered from prow to stern, in the totemic decorations. Eyes figure ubiquitously in the totemic symbols of these peoples on land or afloat—eyes, eyes everywhere, the all-seeing eye. Its significance is a carefully guarded secret of those who know—the mass of the natives not being admitted to this esoteric phase.

This is one of the interesting mysteries of a kindly, industrious people who have welcomed the teachers, physicians and missionaries sent to them by the evangelical Protestant churches.

Says Women Are Utterly Helpless

"Useless Females," However, Change Critic's Mind When He Appears for Speech

London, April 15—Phew! English women have been prostrated by the heat of an attack made on them by one J. Swinburne.

This arch critic startled the members of the sedate musical association the other day by the most stinging indictment of women this generation has yet produced.

Here is what he had in his notes to say:

Women have never done anything of the smallest importance in art. The whole art of music in this country has suffered because all the little girls learned music and the little boys did not. No nation could be musical in which women took an active part in what ought to be the art of music. To prove his point he threw out challenges wholesale:

There has never been a woman critic. No woman has brought out a system of harmony. No woman has written a leading text book on any branch of art. No woman has made a name as teacher, or composer. No musical instrument has ever yet been invented by a woman. Yet every day a million women waste some million hours working a million pianos—costing as much as a navy.

In his opinion the war was a huge sex advertisement for women. They wore comic opera uniforms—breaches wherever possible and they cursed, smoked, swore, talked slang and became as good an imitation of the lower type of manhood as they could, he said.

Another of his complaints against sweet women is that she lacks the mechanical faculty, apropos of which he lashed out thusly:

"A woman cannot cut a pencil. She dabs her pen to the bottom of the ink pot and then when one nib retires into the holder she pushes another in on top of it. She thinks water boiling violently is much hotter than water simmering. She will operate a sewing machine every day of her life and not bother to find out how it works. All machinery is to her queer stuff that only men understand."

Then he started on the dress topic: "Women always look best dressed as tablemaids, nuns or nurses. The costumes are plain and in no way decorative, but give a woman her head and she makes her costume ugly by doing everything possible to distort her figure. Women wear hats which give them a look of hilarious insanity, so that out of doors one feels that the whole sex is completely and outrageously mad."

That and very much more like that was what he had in his notes to say, but he lost his nerve. He expected

DEATH FOLLOWS AUTO ACCIDENT

James Ingram, Wealthy Pequot Lumberman Succumbs to Shock and Loss of Blood

FUNERAL TO BE HELD FRIDAY

At Sank Center from Home of His Brother, Adam Ingram—Deceased Was a Shriner

Death came to one of the two who crashed to the roadway when their car lost a wheel and was ditched five miles out of Park Rapids Tuesday afternoon.

James Ingram, age 66, prominent wealthy lumberman of Pequot, died late Wednesday afternoon following the automobile accident of Tuesday afternoon when the wheel broke from the touring car he was driving on the Park Rapids-Nevis road and crushed his leg. He was removed to the hospital at Park Rapids where his right leg was amputated and at the time it was feared that infection might set in and render necessary the amputation of the other leg. Loss of blood and shock at the time of the accident contributed to bring about the death of Mr. Ingram.

He was a Mason and Shriner. The funeral will be held from the old home town of Mr. Ingram, Sank Center, on Friday afternoon from the residence of his brother, Adam Ingram. The deceased leaves a wife and no children. A niece, Miss Bernice Martin, made her home with them.

James M. Quinn, lumberman in the car with Mr. Ingram, who was pinned under the wreckage, is at the Park Rapids hospital and recovering.

AMERICAN LEGION VAUDEVILLE

Will be Presented at Park Theatre Wednesday and Thursday April 21 and 22

The American Legion Vaudeville Review will be presented at the Park theatre Wednesday and Thursday April 21 and 22, under the auspices of the Sydney Carl Hanson Post No. 255.

The American Legion Vaudeville Review—six big acts—full of pep and pep, is the talk of the state. The cast is composed of service men, who before answering Uncle Sam's call in 1917, did time on the Orpheum and Keith circuits.

The feature act of the big review is the "Destroyer Scene." Life on an American Destroyer in the War Zone is depicted. This act has won commendation from the Navy Department and is just as presented in Chicago during the past winter.

The American Legion Jazz Band—the best in the world—will furnish "Bookoo" jazz.

Then there is Fred Lundberg—the Swede dialect comedian assisted by Billy Blum a straight man of exceptional ability. You will have something to remember after you see Fred and Billy.

The Legion Minstrels, seven clever dancing and singing comedians of the cork who give you impressions of the famous minstrels of bygone days.

For you music lovers, James & Darling in their syncopated novelty "Jimmy James" is the author of the "Regimental Blues" and other national song hits. His partner Miss Darling, is a lady xylophone soloist of preeminence and together they furnish a big treat.

Then there is Eddie Russell, the tramp comedian. He was arrested in St. Paul while in his make-up—it is as good as it can be.

The Brainerd post of the American Legion heartily endorses this big Vaudeville Review. The Executive Committee, after going thoroughly into the quality of these acts, has recommended it to the Brainerd Public.

Support this big show of ex-service men and support your local American Legion Post. Tickets for sale by all Legion members.

CHAMBER COMMERCE REGULAR MEETING

Effort to be Made to Have Two Main Line Passenger Trains Routed Through Brainerd

COUNTY PUBLICITY IS GIVEN

Publicity Committee to Consider Matter of Issuing Booklet on Farming and Lake Resorts

The Chamber of Commerce at its regular meeting presided over by Vice President Theodore B. Brusegaard took up the matter of additional passenger train service for Brainerd and through its railway committee will make a plea for routing two evening main line passenger trains through Brainerd. Need of prompt action was made apparent because new time tables will be issued in May. The railway committee will take the matter under consideration and present Brainerd's case to the Northern Pacific railway company.

Literature advertising lake resorts and the agricultural opportunities of Brainerd was considered and referred to the publicity committee. It is expected to get out a booklet taking up lake and recreation grounds coupled with a review of the opportunities of the farmer in this rich belt of Minnesota famed for potato raising and dairying, clover lands, etc.

Booster envelopes on lake, fishing and other recreations, heretofore printed in the cities, will hereafter be printed by local men, the plate having been secured by the Chamber.

Baseball matters and the need of a new park, etc., were not taken up, as they will first be brought to the attention of the directors.

NEW INDUSTRY OF ANTON MAHLUM

Systematic Production of Maple Syrup Under Way at His Big Sugar Bush on North Long Lake

1400 SAP PAILS ARE IN USE

Evaporator Plant Installed, Five Men and Team at Work—5,000 Pails for Next Year

Anton Mahlum has set under way a new industry in this section, maple syrup production. Five men and a team are at work in what is known, for year's as the Mahlum sugar bush on North Long Lake.

The land owned by Mr. Mahlum is luxuriantly covered with maple trees and is an ideal location for syrup production. In the "pioneer days" "Hole-in-the-Day" and his band of Chippewas used to camp on the lake shore and make sugar.

At present Mr. Mahlum is tapping 1400 trees and next year production will be increased and 5,000 pails used. An evaporator plant has been installed and the sap as gathered regularly is boiled and skimmed four different times.

The maple syrup has been placed on sale at the Eagle Provision Co. store and orders are also taken at Mr. Mahlum's home. The syrup is a most excellent product, pure and healthful and when once tasted wins approbation of the most epicurean palate.

There are some Brainerd people who regularly send away to Wisconsin and other states for their maple syrup, but with Mr. Mahlum's syrup on the market there will be no need for this. Patronize home industry and buy your maple syrup in Brainerd.

With frosty weather at night and warmer days the sap is just rolling out of the trees. The other day two barrels went to waste in the sugar bush as the pails ran over and the sap could not be gathered fast enough. Trees from 6 inches in diameter and up are suitable for sap production.

NEVER PUT IN CIRCULATION

Dean Swift's Notable Victory in Campaign Against Unpopular Coin Designed for Ireland.

Wood's halfpence, which was to have been placed for use in Ireland by Great Britain about 200 years ago, was never circulated in Erin, as a result of the efforts of Jonathan Swift, at the time dean of St. Patrick's in Dublin, where he was in "exile," and who had for ten years previously been attacking the attitude of the British toward Ireland.

Swift's fight against the circulation of the coin came when Great Britain decided to farm out the contract for their manufacture to a certain William Wood, on condition that he should pay the government 1,000 pounds a year for 14 years. In his famous Drapier letters Swift gradually built up a picture of the ruin which Wood's halfpence were destined to bring upon Ireland. The government became alarmed. A report to the privy council made in July, 1724, defended the patent to Wood, but recommended that the amount to be coined should be reduced.

In the end Lord Carteret was sent to Ireland as lord lieutenant to endeavor to settle the matter on the basis of this compromise. Lord Carteret offered a reward of 300 pounds for the discovery of the author of the Drapier letters, and ordered a prosecution against the printer upon his arrival. Swift boldly reproached him with his tyranny, then looked calmly on while the grand jury threw out the bill against the printer in spite of all the efforts of the chief justice to secure its return. The next grand jury presented Wood's halfpence as a nuisance which marked the end of it all, the coin never circulating in Ireland.

PREYS ON HARMFUL RODENTS

According to This Writer, the Owl is Really a Good Friend of the Agriculturist.

Superstition still clings to the owl, due largely to ignorance and lack of discrimination.

When twilight falls the owl comes forth from some remote recess where it has spent the day in sleep, and uttering a peevish cry, hurries out upon its foraging expedition. As the tired farmer is lost in refreshing sleep, this bird, against which the hand of man has been raised for centuries, commences its beneficial work which only ceases when the first rays of the morning sun come slanting over the hilltops, blinding its eyes and sending it quickly to cover.

The great orb of the owl are remarkably developed and are keenest in the early hours of the night and morning, when many harmful rodents are most active. Marvellous, indeed, is the sight that enables it to strike the tiny mouse in the darkness.

Owls are the natural check upon this multitude, and thus are of inestimable value to agriculture. From an economic standpoint, it would be hard to find a more useful bird.—Los Angeles Times.

CAPITAL CITY IN HOSPITABLE MOOD

WASHINGTON AGAIN CENTER OF ATTRACTION FOR THE MANY TOURISTS.

STUDENTS ARE IN THE LEAD

Thousands of High School Pupils Are Daily Visitors; Wartime Restrictions Removed, With Exception of White House and Grounds.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.

Washington.—The national capital for the first time since April, 1917, is receiving tourists with open arms. Apparently the word has already gone forth that the capital city is again in a hospitable mood for the tide of sightseers is running strong. They are coming in these days from New England, from all the South Atlantic states, from New York and Pennsylvania and even from the central West. The "rubberneck" wagons, the guides in the various public buildings, as well as the guides who ply their trade on foot and out-of-doors are once more busily engaged. April is the month for visits from high school students. Not a day passes but that several thousands of these students come in for a stay of from 24 to 48 hours. They are always accompanied by a few of their teachers, and go about the business of sightseeing as methodically as they go about mastering their lessons in school.

Practically all the restrictions that were in force here during the war and for a good many months after the signing of the armistice have been removed. The one notable exception is the White House and the White House grounds. Before the world war came on, the so-called front White House grounds were always open to the public, and a section of the lower floor of the White House was open to visitors for two hours during the middle of the day. Under that arrangement tourists were permitted to visit the historic East room, saunter through the halls of the president's home and occasionally get a look into the Red room, the Blue room, the dining room and even the kitchen. With the coming of war, it was not deemed advisable to permit the public to have free access to the president's home, and it was also thought best to close the White House grounds.

May Reopen Grounds.

Recently the question as to whether the grounds shall again be opened to the public has been under consideration at the White House. It seems only a question of time until the big iron gates will stand open as they formerly did, and if President Wilson acts favorably on the advice he is receiving, the East room will again be opened to visitors. For a long time extra precautions were observed at the treasury. Strangers were not permitted to go below the main floor; they were prohibited from looking at the great stacks of money in the basement, but those war restrictions have been lifted, and the tourists are now permitted not only to look at the piled-up wealth of Uncle Sam, but to handle packages of money.

The big attractions for the tourists are, of course, the Capitol where congress is in session, the congressional library, the Washington monument, the various public buildings, the Lincoln Memorial on the Mall, now nearing completion, the National Museum, the Smithsonian Institution, Arlington and Mount Vernon. The local guides predict that this is to be the banner year for tourists. They are sure that there are probably a million persons who had planned to visit the capital during 1917, 1918, 1919 who did not get here, and who will come this year. They say that if the April stream up to date is indicative of what is to come, not fewer than 2,000,000 Americans will take a look at the capital during the year. Before the war the tourists numbered about 1,000,000 a year.

May Notice Crowds.

Washington never has made any special arrangement for taking care of tourists. Some persons are inclined to criticize the local population because more attention is not devoted to the crowds of visitors. Recently the commercial organizations of the city have had this subject up, and there is not the probability, it seems, that it will not be long until some definite plan for taking notice of the crowds of visitors will be adopted. Be it said there has never been any complaint from the tourists that they were neglected by the Capital city. Occasionally there is complaint of overcharging, but there never has been very much of this.

April, May and June are the big tourist months during the fore part of the year, and September, October and November the fall season for visiting the capital. However, the stream of visitors keeps up during the warm summer months and during the winter the tourist business is by no means suspended. That so many persons make it a point to visit their capital every year is proof to persons who have given the subject any thought that the American people do take some pride in the capital of their country.

REVENGE THAT WAS COSTLY

Australian Farmer's Fancy Method of Pest Destruction Could Hardly Be Called a Success.

A farmer living near Boree Creek, New South Wales, was greatly annoyed by the depredations of a hawk, which almost daily took toll among his chickens. Finally, after a good deal of trouble, he succeeded in trapping the bird alive, and, smarting under his losses, resolved upon a really elaborate revenge. Procuring a supply of "gell" (explosive), he fastened it to the unfortunate hawk's leg and attached a long fuse to it. Then, having lit the fuse, he released the bird and waited for it to fly into the air to annihilate. However, the trick failed to work. Somewhat dazed, no doubt, by the rough handling it had received, the hawk obstinately refused to move from a position near the door of the "lumpy."

With the fuse sputtering fiercely, the farmer began to get uneasy, and he did all in his power to secure this "feathered mine" away, but at first with little success. Finally it rose in the air—but only to settle on his roof, near the chimney. Shouting and bombarding with stones and sticks failed to move it from this position, and with the perspiration streaming down his face and his hair beginning to stand on end the farmer was ultimately obliged to take to his heels for his own safety. The bird sat doggedly on the roof till the end came; then the luckless squatter, looking back, saw roof, chimney and hawk go up in one terrific explosion. He has now sworn off all fancy methods of pest destruction.—Wide World Magazine.

Dubious Prospect.

"That psychic expert says there are trees and animals in the spirit world." "Maybe there are," said Farmer Cornsattel. "Only I must say that chopping wood and drivin' horses are among the things of this life that I was hopin' to get away from."

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is a sign you have been eating too much meat, which forms uric acid.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach aches, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.
